Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The proposed settlement is bad. It does not sufficiently reprimand Microsoft for their decades of commercial abuse. Millions every year are brainwashed into believing that anything stamped with Microsoft is a superior product, when it is known that all competing products were not only copied, but that the originals deserve the business for their innovation. However, forcing Microsoft to release their Windows source code may be the wrong path as well. Quite simply, I hope that Microsoft will be broken up into at least 3 separate companies (Operating Systems, Office, all others), with the addition that none can have any business deals with any of the others for at least 25 years. I feel that this will be sufficient time for the digital economy to recover from Microsoft's tyranny. Thank you for your time, and I hope that our government can be counted upon to carry out this case to a fair and just end.
